Your bargaining committee wants to share the following general information.211 Saskatchewan

<http://sk.211.ca/homepage>

211 Saskatchewan is a free, confidential, and searchable website of human services in Saskatchewan, with over 5,000 listings of social, community, non-clinical health, and government services across the province. The categories of listings include, but are not limited to, mental health and addictions, homelessness, income support, health care, food security and community programs.

For easy access, services are also grouped together from the perspectives of the people seeking services, e.g. Aboriginal peoples, refugees and immigrants, older adults, youth, children and families, people with disabilities, veterans and military personnel.

211 Saskatchewan is a service provided in partnership by United Way Regina and United Way of Saskatoon and Area.
